

ARMISTICE SIGNED;
POWERS' TIFF GROWS

Russia Replies to German Chancellor. Austro-Servian Troubles Still Acute.

Peace Conference in London Next Week—Terms of Last Night's Agreement.

(By Times Special Cable)

London, Dec. 4—Cannon and rifle have been silenced on the Balkan battlefields with the signature of the armistice last evening, or at least they will be as soon as word can reach the more isolated combatants.

The tangle among the allied powers, however, persists, and because even more accelerated as the days pass without the discovery of a means of settling it.

Russia has retorted to what she terms the "rattling of sabers" by the German Chancellor, by noting that a repetition of the methods resorted to at the period when the occupation by Austria-Hungary of the Balkans had brought about a crisis will not now be submitted.

The German government by Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg to the idea of war was presented by the newspapers of St. Petersburg. The general trend of their comments was that the war, which was begun by the North Germans, which says:

"History is repeating itself, but it is not so easy now to force Russia to plomacy into a faint-hearted retreat. Some intimation will frighten no body."

The immediate withdrawal of the vast Russian deposits in the German banks is advocated by many of the Russian papers.

The war parties, both in Austria and Austria-Hungary, seem to hold the public opinion against the peacefully disposed Ministers of those countries. Any afterward increase of provocations, such as the entry of Servia into the war, in the opinion of diplomatic circles here, is a moment, set Austria-Hungary in motion. In this connection, the government of the Russian Emperor would find itself unable to resist.

Should the Russian government refuse to adhere to the armistice signed yesterday, it would necessarily throw Bulgaria, once more, into the arms of Austria-Hungary, and thus free the movement to the Servian resistance to the European powers, who are practically unanimous in their desire to see the Balkans in peace.

If Austria-Hungary should attempt, as has been suggested, to employ Roumania to keep Bulgaria quiet, the Government of Roumania, by the warning of

REX FLEAK TO TAKE STANDWill Testify at the Kamloops Murder Trial.

CASE NOT STRONG

But Magistrate Was Inclined To Commit Accused.

Kamloops, B. C. Dec. 4.—Rex Fleak, the former Hamilton young man, on his preliminary trial here for the murder of Charles Acheson, on the night of November 2nd, will go into the witness box in own behalf, as will also Leo, who helped him to commit the crime.

The trial, which began on Monday evening last all yesterday, and the day's testimony was very much that of Monday. Neither Fleak nor was positively identified, and the case was all circumstantial.

The prosecution's side has been as is the usual course, a protracted hearing. Magistrate J. W. Scott presided over the trial, which concluded Mayor Myles, and included Mr. Southey and Mr. McGlochlin, arrested the accused, and Dayton Murphy, the young men who were witnesses when he was assaulted, testifying the revolver shot him.

Fleak, wife of the ex-Hamiltonian, near him throughout the trial, she followed with great interest.

Attorney F. J. Fulton, who appears for the crown, moved for the next of kin of the persons for trial, and the trial was adjourned. A lawyer, attorney for Fleak, asked a resumption of his client. He declared the evidence was altogether unconvincing, and that the prosecution was to say the least, weak. He pointed out that the man being questioned had been beaten and had declared he was attacked by three men. He had been arrested. When he was brought into the courtroom he was seen to have been made out of the police, representing Low, the points that Mr. Myles made.

Fleak, for the crown, replied some of the testimony might slight importance, it was ascertain well proven facts could not be denied, making a strong case.

Mr. Scott admitted that some individuals in the case, he was particularly thought, the defendants should be a jury.

At this stage that the accused had been tried, he was present to defend, and the hearing was adjourned until to-day.

AN EXPLOSION

Caused Damage at Van
Wagner Beach School.

When the teacher and scholars of Van Wagner's Beach Public School arrived at the school house yesterday morning, they found the glass of the windows had been shattered, the glass of the hall of learning broken. There had been an explosion, and the glass had been shattered.

An investigation was made as quickly as possible to see what repairs should be made to the school.

ABDUCTION CASE

Father Daughter and Son
Concerned in It.

Mrs. Maud Vancouver, a young woman who resides on the mountain, appeared before the magistrate yesterday, charged with abduction.

Her father, Alexander Clark, was the complainant, and charged her with taking away his son. The charge was dropped this morning, when Mrs. Vancouver admitted not to trouble the boy again.

She said that her father gave her the boy to keep when she was married, and that she then had the right to keep him. She recently took the boy from school to her home after he had been taken away by his father. The father then got a warrant out for her arrest.

William Crawford, who hails from around Burlington, was found guilty this morning of the theft of an overcoat and a hat, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail. He was found guilty, but two witnesses swore that they saw him leave the Marathon poolroom with the coat. He was allowed to go on deferred sentence.

William Henry, James Hetherington, Peter McLean, Henry Chatterton, Thomas Tarnell, Margaret Cawdron and Lawrence Kelly were each fined $5 for being drunk.

Good Work Done During the Past Month.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been very busy the past month. Many warnings have been given by Inspector Berlinghoff to men who do not look after their horses. During the month he dealt with 30 cases of horses that were ill-treated and 20 horses were humanely destroyed. Two men who were using horses with sore shins, and who had been given a choice of $10 and received warnings to beware of such treatment in the future. He has been dealing with the horses of men who have been left in railway care longer than necessary. Several warnings have been given and it is hoped that the men will be more considerate. The inspector also visited Dundas, Waterdown, Burlington and Crown Point, and found that the road was in a bad condition. He has been urging the road authorities to put a good load through and in a good many cases had to order drivers to get up to the standards through.

Mr. Scott admitted that some of the testimony might slight importance, it was ascertain well proven facts could not be denied, making a strong case.

Mr. Scott admitted that some individuals in the case, he was particularly thought, the defendants should be a jury.

At this stage that the accused had been tried, he was present to defend, and the hearing was adjourned until to-day.

MET OLD FRIENDS

"Mikado" and "Ermine"
Stage Director Here.

Alexander Henderson, who staged the production of "The Mikado" under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire in May, 1909, and also the production of "Ermine" at the same theatre to-day, having come with the Dion O'Dare company, which is playing at the Grand Theatre, Henderson is the man to thank for the success. During his short stay here he has renewed a number of old acquaintances.

THE HUSBAND ARRESTED.

George Marshall, who lives on West Avenue, north, was arrested this morning about 9 o'clock, accused of doing bodily harm to his wife. It is alleged that Marshall, who is a member of the Knights of Labor, ran at his wife with a knife and cut her about the arms and hands so severely that she was unable to get to a doctor. Constable Burville was called in and Marshall taken to the police station.

It is foolish to sit down and waste your time thinking about all the time you have wasted.

CHAPTER XIX.

Let to himself, Rupert Downing was the last man in the world that Hab would have taken a fancy to, but with India and his wife he had come to like him, and the little girl with her foolish little feet wandered directly into the trap covered over with flowers that they had set for her.

He was not quite correct in his estimate of Rupert Downing. In the gay life which he had led abroad he had known the piti of the first step toward love, my darling! The first girl who pitied a lover for his mad adoration.

Bab tried to struggle out of his arms, but he held her fast; and she was too weary to move.

"Tell me that you care for me ever just little, Bab," he whispered, "give me just one gleam of hope."

"I do not know what to say, Mr. Downing. I know that you pitied me, but I have had no fortune which had been left him; and his eyes had just opened to the grim fact that he was a pauper, and that, too, without debts and ruin rung.

He could not keep up this expensive style of living much longer. He had been obliged to come to one of the homeliest made-in-Boston, whose pocket, however, was heavy with gold, and who had no other character, met Hab, in all his fresh, young, innocent beauty.

He had but to meet her to fall in love at first sight, and the poor girl was his poor girl his infatuation would have led him no further. With his wealth was first, and love a secondary consideration, he had won the heart of a heartless lover who was wooing Bab so ardently.

A sound of Bab's approaching footsteps, India slipped out of the drawing room, in accordance with Rupert Downing's wish. When the girl entered she found her sister seated at the piano.

"Bab hurried up with outstretched hands.

"Oh, Mr. Downing!" she cried in the deepest emotion, "how can I ever thank you for what you have done! You risked your life to bring me to safety. What words shall I use to convey my gratitude to you?"

"We are betrothed, Bab, darling," he repeated, his heart so rapturously filled that he had made the happiest man on earth.

"You have made me the happiest man on earth, Bab."

At that moment India entered the drawing room, but pretended to beat a hasty retreat to the table at which greeted her eyes.

"Do not go, Miss India," he cried, stepping forward, leading Bab by the hand.

"I am your sweet little Cousin, Bab, and I am your sweet little Cousin."

"Dear me, how delightful!" cried India, smiling, and clasping Bab in her arms.

"What a delightful finale to the romantic—ay, I might almost say tragic—episode of my life!"

"I am your sweet little Cousin, Bab, and I am your sweet little Cousin."

"Oh, forgive me—Miss India," he cried, suddenly dropping her head in a turning away. "I never meant to tell you 't was secret. In my heart—when I had a secret, I always told it to one—you more than any 'one'—but the words seemed to spring unconsciously from my lips."

He realized that the girl was terribly confused, as well as knew his ad-usage.

"Do not despise me for telling of my love," he murmured; "if ever I do, I will not live."

She looked at him with startled eyes.

The lovely young face did not pale or flush, but her heart beat fast. India was wondering if she had ever been able to awaken that childish heart from its calm sleep; she should have been able to make her love known.

He saw that she tried to speak, but could not.

"Please, I displease you, Miss. Downing," he whispered in a trembling voice, adding quickly, "Assure me that I have not, that my breath is frey."

"No, I am not angry, Mr. Downing," he said, "but I was only a little surprised you."

"Your frankness gives me courage to say more," he whispered, though an effort to do so. "I have always loved you, Barbara, as man never loved before. If all the poetry in the world could not describe the idolatrous worship of you, I loved you the first moment my eyes rested upon your fair face. I could not bear to let you go, and I had to tell out to that my heart had it that instant suddenly gone. I must not love you, Barbara, and the dew is to them; when I am with you my life seems complete; and when I am away from you the world seems desolate in the deepest gloom."

"Oh, Barbara, what love you to say to me like this! With all my heart, one man only can be your true love."

Barbara was terribly frightened; she was almost in tears. She wished she had known that India would come to her rescue; that some one would enter the drawing room.

A Successful Treatment

Edward Kennedy, of Mount

Coon, 40 years old, was advised by his Physician to Dr. Martelli's Fe-rinary Clinic.

"I cannot see any mistake in the world," he said.

"I have a strong heart, and I can stand a good deal of work."

"I am not angry, Mr. Downing,"

he said, "but I was only a little surprised you."

"Your frankness gives me courage to say more," he whispered, though an effort to do so. "I have always loved you, Barbara, as man never loved before. If all the poetry in the world could not describe the idolatrous worship of you, I loved you the first moment my eyes rested upon your fair face. I could not bear to let you go, and I had to tell out to that my heart had it that instant suddenly gone. Barbara was terribly frightened; she was almost in tears. She wished she had known that India would come to her rescue; that some one would enter the drawing room.

SCOURGED THE NATIONALISTS.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux made a spirited attack in the Commons last evening on the British alliance of the Tories, in connection with their statements on Canada's naval policy. He told of the disloyal utterances of some of this generation on the public hustings in Quebec during the last election and of Mr. Ames circulating the "Truth" in the "No man's land" of the northwest, one particular to "Borden" Hartmann. He charged the Postmaster-General, the Minister of Indian Affairs and the Toronto Conservative with their statements on Canada's naval policy. He told of the disloyal utterances of some of this generation on the public hustings in Quebec during the last election and of Mr. Ames circulating the "Truth" in the "No man's land" of the northwest, one particular to "Borden" Hartmann. He charged the Postmaster-General, the Minister of Indian Affairs and the new Secretary of State with having made statements during the election campaign that they dare not repeat in the House; and when Mr. Borden protested and declared that he would not repeat them, Mr. Ames retorted that he had not been shown a copy of Le Nationaliste and read a portion of it to Mr. Borden, in which he declared that "Borden had alienated himself to Laurier" and was the master and tool of Laurier in this naval business." But he added, "The gods have been kind to me, for I have found the Postmaster-General." The House then got boisterous. There were loud cries from the Liberals for Borden to resign, and cries from the Tories for Lemieux to take back his statement. But Borden did not resign and Mr. Lemieux did not take back his statement. He went further and said Mr. Borden had not even made a statement than those he mentioned.

Mr. Peltier made no attempt to deny the charges made against himself by Mr. Lemieux. They would not bear denial. They were too true. Mr. Borden took no part in the discussion. He is merely reaping what he has sown. The country is beginning to know to what extent Mr. Borden will be held responsible for the naval defence of Canada, and that he has not even made a statement than those he mentioned.

Today they are not so foolish as the Liberals to say something for nothing. They are not so loyal as all that. At a big Unitarian demonstration at Albert Hall, London, recently, Lord Lansdowne, one of the leading Tariff Reformers, said:

"We will win, as I believe, we shall win in time, to the taxation which will be necessary to meet the enormous obligations we shall be held to by the Government. We must be free to defend our own markets against the invasion of those who deny the right of self-government. We must be free to keep our language and our religion. But if we are not free, we will be taxed to the bone."

Lord Lansdowne, who was 74 years old, in 1897, he declared that the doctrine of total depravity, eternal hell torments, a blood atonement and verbal inspiration of the Bible had passed away, due to the influence of the liberal churches.

The Speaker says: "Just when, under the influence of a separatist leader, certain members of the Dominion Parliament are balking at the thought of a direct gift of Dreadnaughts to the British Government?" That must mean Australia and the Torontonians allies. They are opposing the gift of Dreadnaughts.

Intricate Suit In County Court Yesterday.

CHARGE OF JUDGE

Refers to Advance In Arts of Peace.

All of yesterday afternoon's session of the county court, following the address to the grand jury by his honor, Judge Snider, was devoted to considering whether the suit of the solicitor general, Malcolmson vs. Wiggin, would be dismissed by a jury or by trial by his honor without a jury. In the end Judge Snider reserved his decision. The case was decidedly interesting and very intricate. The name of James Ogilvie, the missing young lawyer, who left Hamilton with several very serious charges registered against him, was mentioned in connection with the argument, and it is reported the reason was the result of failure on the part of Ogilvie to deal honestly with a client.

"You are called together to discharge duties of an important body of which you now belong. I hope that for each one of you the past year has been a success and happy year, and when we compare ourselves with the people of the past, we find that we have had less peace and disturbance, we must admit that our lot is a happy one indeed," said His Honor in his address. "There is not a single man here to whom it is not a pleasure to be called to the bar to testify to, with which mean that there is nothing much wrong. We have every reason to feel satisfied. We seem to advance more, in industrial, civil and other ways than criminal. That is a matter for great satisfaction."

The case involved little serious crime during the past year and it is a matter for congratulation that there is little to be complained of. There are only two cases. One is a charge of forgery against Alexander Christie, and the other a charge against Christie's lawyer, Wiggin, who is charged with that they forged cheques on the bank of Montreal, and that they are artists in this line."

His Honor explained that they were not judging the guilt or innocence of the men, but were simply deciding whether there was sufficient evidence to sustain the trial. According to his honor, the case explained just what forgery was as meant by the act. He told the jury that, even though the man was tried on trial for forgery there was another phase to the case, that of uttering. If the young man had attempted to have the forged cheques forged to be forged, they could be placed on trial for uttering, and if the jury were of the opinion that the man had forged the cheques, a trial for forgery they could return a true bill on both charges.

His Honor also informed the jury that another case was to be called up for their consideration. It was probable that an indictment would be issued against a township for malfeasance in a poor law case. The man was not at liberty to discuss that matter as yet.

In closing the prosecution urged the jury to visit the prison and the jail to see the first case, Malcolmson vs. Wiggin, was called. S. F. Washington, who appeared for the defendant, stated that he placed on record his belief that in this case there were no points to be decided by twelve good men and true. Malcolmson, appearing for the prosecution, urged that the case be given to a jury, and his honor decided to hear some of the evidence, and making a decision.

Practically all the evidence in the case was put in during the several hours that the case was under consideration. The defense, however, did not call Walter Scott Malcolmson, was to the effect that he sold a house, valued at $4000, to the Wiggin family, and that George Ogilvie was acting for him. To Mr. Washington he declared that he, at the time, held no implied power to do this.

That is, that early this year, The house, situated Burritt street, was mortgaged to Wiggin, who paid down $1000, and later Malcolmson went to their office to have the matter finally settled up.

Malcolmson, however, paid him all but $1100, which was the amount of a mortgage. Malcolmson swore that Mr. Wiggin, in May, 1911, had a verbal cancellation, after which Malcolmson was handed a cheque for $100 and a discharge of the mortgage, which was paid by Ogilvie. Wiggin told Malcolmson to keep the mortgage until it was paid.

"I still believed in his honesty," asked Mr. Washington.

"Yes; we went to the same church, and that is the reply."

Later Malcolmson referred to Ogilvie and received $80.

He then went to Mr. Marshall, of Marshall & Ambrose & Marshall, and requested him to collect what was owing him from Ogilvie. Mr. Marshall was successful in getting $8000, and a balance due him of some $600. He contended that, as Wiggin lawyers had given him a bill of exchange, a bill of exchange and the mortgage papers, money for which he would have to collect from Ogilvie, he had discharged his obligation, and that he was responsible for what was still owing.

His honor decided to reserve his decision, but he had satisfied himself regarding a few points in law.

Gossip of Wall St.

(Supplied by Evans & Gert)
London, Dec. 4.—"To-day may witness some further unsettling irregularities in fluctuations in the stock market, but our reports point strongly to a accumulation of buying interest, which appears to be largely to be manifested and for the purpose of establishing a mixed sentiment. The liquidation brought out by the foreign market is not likely to us to have been extensive. The Hariman Pacific has been 'mysteriously' trading for some time, and it is beginning to dawn on many that the fluctuations may have been held down in anticipation of an adverse decision, therefore, to the proposed amendment. To a great extent corporations will desire to make their assets as high as possible, and statements compiled on the last day of the market show that there should be extensive reinvestment in the big disbursement—perhaps $300,000,000 in the first part of the year, releasing a large amount of accumulated funds. Many promises to case with the foreign market negotiations abroad, and Europe has received a favorable report. The standard rails should be bought on repossessions, according to our advice, to the extent, to average in case of slumps, which we think will be but temporary.

Society

St. Paul's Church was the scene of a very beautiful wedding this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Miss Elsa Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mason Young of Oak Bank, Upper James Street, and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Clegg, of Clegg's, were married by Rev. D. R. Drummond, D.D. The ceremony took place in the presence of a good number of guests and many interested friends. The church decorations were white chrysanthemums, blue, pale and white carnations, and the beauty of the edifice itself, and with the fast-blooming, gaudy, made a scene of great beauty. The bride was dressed in a gown in white satin, draped with shadow lace, tails, veil and orange blossoms, and the groom was in a dark suit. Mr. Thompson was matron of honor, and Miss Constance Turnbull bridesmaid. They were dressed in a gown of white with dark trimmings and large white hats, and carried American Beauty roses. The groom was at the altar, and the ushers were Messrs. Victor Watson, Harold Watson, Alan Young, J. Verne, and Mr. and Mrs. John Clegg (bridesmaids). The bride was given away by her father. The wedding music was played by Mr. and Mrs. Hall, F.M., G.O. organist of the church, who played the Lobengiven march as the bride entered the church and Mr. McDonald sang the hymn. The organist also played during and before the ceremony.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride, who was beautiful with flowers and the table decorations were elaborate. Mrs. Young and her mother were in a gown of purple chiffon with velvet and lace trimmings and hat to match. Mrs. and Mrs. Watson, the bride's parents, were in a gown of white with a tulle veil and Mrs. Wright was dressed in a daintily draped gown, lace trimmings and pearl and bead trimming.

Mrs. Dennis Hicklin, as matron of honor, was in a gown of white with orange marquise over white, with oriental trimming and a brown hat with red roses.

The colour scheme in the tea room was yellow and was carried out in sunset pink, the centre of the table a basket of these flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Clegg were in a gown of white satin bow, embossed in soft folds of yellow chiffon, over which was superimposed a delicate yellow, yellow and white, marquise over white, with oriental trimming and a brown hat with red roses.

The ladies of the committee wished to thank all who helped and made the success, and helped to make it such a success. Those in charge were: Mrs. Dennis Hicklin, Mrs. Peacock, Mrs. Tolson, Mrs. M. M. Johnson, Mrs. Johnson—Moses Alice Stewart and Alecia Neil.
